Kuno = Khublei-Newsletter for Northeast-India*

Dear Friends of Khublei,

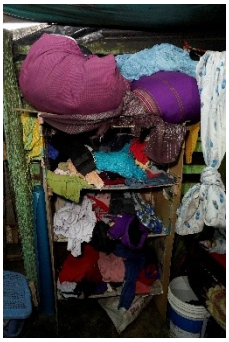

over the past three months, there's been plenty going on at Khublei again. We've got some news to share, lovely moments to recount and fascinating insights into our projects. Read on to find out more!

A new home for Rima's family

It is the last day of our visit to Jowai in May. We visit Rima Lyngdoh's family. Their living conditions are deeply distressing:

The parents live with their six children in a simple tin shack. Pieces of fabric serve as makeshift partitions between the living areas. There are just two beds for the family of eight.

A narrow shelf unit with four shelves serves as a wardrobe for the whole family. The children look sad, and their mother isn't in the mood to smile either. This encounter stays with us. That very evening, we post about the visit on our WhatsApp status. The response is overwhelming: some of our supporters are so moved that they spontaneously donate money for a new house. Their willingness to help has created a new home: on 17 October, Fathers Manbha and Ebormitre will consecrate the house built on the same site. This marks the start of a new chapter for Rima and her family.

We would like to express our heartfelt thanks to the generous donors who have made this new beginning possible!

Sponsored children are at the heart of Khublei

Behind every child lies a difficult story and the hope for a better future. Through sponsorship, we offer them support and the reassuring feeling that there is someone there to accompany them through life.

Today, we would like to briefly introduce three of these children who are hoping for this support.

Eladmi, aged 11, in Year 3:
Eladmi is a smart young boy who has had to shoulder a great deal of responsibility from an early age. On 23 June 2026, he lost his mother. Since then, his father, a daily labourer, has been the sole provider for him and his eight siblings, which is an enormous challenge for him. In the afternoons, Eladmi looks after a neighbour's five goats, thereby helping to support his family.

Shemphang, aged 12, in Year 4:
Shemphang is growing up in difficult circumstances. Neither his parents nor his two brothers have ever attended school. His father left the family when he was born. His mother is an alcoholic and no longer lives at home. Shemphang has found a home with his aunt, but she herself lives in extreme poverty and already has four children of her own to look after.

Princeson, aged 12, in Year 5: Princeson and his five siblings lost their father, who worked as a teacher, two years ago. Since his death, their mother has been in such a poor state of mental health that she is no longer able to work or look after the children. Their aunt has taken the siblings in, even though she has six children of her own, lives in extreme poverty and has to cope with a disability.

Perhaps YOU are the very person who can give one of these children a new lease of life?!

Wandakaru wants to become a nurse. Who will support her on this training journey??

Our sponsored girl, Wandakaru, will be finishing Year 12 later this year. After that, she would like to become a nurse and be there for other people herself.

Her sponsor passed away in September at the age of 94. He had already set aside money for her education, thereby laying an important foundation for her future. However, the amount is not enough to cover the entire cost of her education.

Who would like to continue the sponsorship and help Wandakaru achieve her career aspirations? Please get in touch with us!

Sunshine and lovely encounters

Bright sunshine, a great atmosphere and lots of interested visitors:

There's plenty going on at our Khublei stand at the district harvest festival in Stegaurach in September. Our range of products is going down well, and we're particularly delighted by the many conversations we've had. We talk about life in Meghalaya and our projects, and can sense just how much interest our work is generating. It's been a thoroughly lovely day, which has given us fresh impetus for our work.

One more floor-more opportunities for youngsters

Our school in Mooralong is growing. The photo shows what your help has already made possible. However, we still need a significant portion of the funding for the top floor.

Please help us to drive this expansion forward! Your donation will create opportunities for education and new perspectives for young people!
